Situated in Ladoix-Serrigny, at the foot of the Corton hill, in the north of the Côte de Beaune, Domaine Jean-Pierre MALDANT has seen five generations of winemakers since 1895. In 1998, Jean-Pierre Maldant decided to give up his job working the vineyards for the Hospices de Beaune to devote himself entirely to his own domaine. His son, Pierre-François Maldant, has now succeeded him at the head of the family domaine, where he has been making the wines since 2010. The vineyard has expanded to 9 hectares with the acquisition of the Ladoix "Les Buis" and Aloxe Corton parcels. The domaine is composed of small plots situated in the communes of Ladoix-Serrigny, Saigny-les-Beaune, Chorey-les-Beaune and Aloxe-Corton. The utmost care is taken in the vineyards and with the grapes: sustainable growing methods, no herbicides, traditional ploughing methods and harvesting by hand. The domaine produces the full hierarchy of Burgundy wines, from the regional Burgundy appellations to Premiers Crus and Grands Crus, amongst which is the famous white Grand Cru, "Corton Charlemagne".
